I Think I Should be on the 5th grade basketball team for many good reasons. These reasons are I pay attention, listen, and work well with my fellow team mates. However, my best quality at basketball is my fast running capabilities.

One major quality for basketball is listing. My team mates need to hear game calls and plans when the time is needed. Listening to the coachs instruction is important too. One last reason good listening is needed is so the team is not confuzed and they have a game plan made.

A second quality needed to be a great basketball player is being a team player. This consists of having a good attitude, being physically fit, Attending practice and being respectful to the coach.

Last but not least is my best quality, running. A good basket ball player needs to have good running skills. Your legs need to be strong and in shape And consistently stay healthy. The last thing which makes a good runner is practicing a well balanced diet.

All in All basket ball takes lots of hard dedication and work. Being committed to my team and coach is what will bring good and strong out comes in the end. If we all abide by these strategies, good sportmanship will prospere.
